

GOV. ALLEN FAVORS PLAN TO EXTEND LINES TO BOSTON AIRPORT

URGE LEASING OF LAND FOR FLYING BASE

Hearing Reveals Curley Seeks Zepp Station at Governors Island

Adoption of a redrafted resolve authorizing the State department of public works to lease from time to time additional State-owned land at East Boston to the city for airport extensions, was urged at a legislative hearing today by Thomas H. Blodgett, representing Mayor Curley.

"It is the desire of the mayor to have the finest airport in the country so that planes from foreign countries will make Boston a port of entry," Atty. Blodgett declared.

He presented to the committee the resolve which was adopted at a conference between Governor Allen, Mayor Curley and Public Works Commissioner Frank E. Lyman.

The plan includes the proposal to make Governor's Island a part of the airport. In the event that the island is turned over to the city by the federal government, the land will be leveled and an adequate Zeppelin and large planes.

William J. McDonald, prominent realtor, at the same hearing supported a bill filed by Rep. William H. Hearn of East Boston, under which the public works department would be authorized to acquire any satisfactory property, for a term of 99 years, lands and flats of the State in East Boston.

He declared that the company he represents has 30,000 acres of land behind the property owned by the State, which when the large industrial development proposed.

McDonald felt that a proper airport could be developed at Apple Island because if the airport is continued at its present site, with proposed expansion, it will stop industrial development.

OPPOSITE SITE
He was against locating an airport on a deep water channel. At the time the present airport was located where it is now, he said, it was believed to be temporary.

Blodgett, however, stated that the mayor is in favor of the airport where it is now, without change. It would be unfortunate, he said, the mayor believed, to make any change and could see no reason for mixing up an industrial development with a site already developed for airplane purposes.

Within 10 years, he predicted, the city will have to have two or three airports.

Taxi Driver, Hit-Run Victim, Near Death
Henry Gordon, 35, of Cushing st., Cambridge, received injuries which may prove fatal when the taxi cab which he was driving was struck by a hit-and-run motorist at North and Hampshire sts., Cambridge.

His cab was struck on the driver's side by the unknown automobile, which backed away after the crash, according to the police.

POSTAL HEADS ALLEN ADVISES ARE GUESTS WITH MAYOR
More than a dozen members of the Essex County Postmasters' Association were guests of Collector of Post William H. Luffin at luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce today.

Speakers were Mr. Luffin and E. H. Wilcox, postmaster at Manchester and president of the association. Mr. Luffin spoke briefly on various federal activities in the city and Mr. Wilcox extended the thanks of the members of the association to their host.

Following the luncheon the visitors inspected the custom house, the appraisers' store in Northern ave. and the foreign mails division of the general postoffice in State st.

Bullet Hits Home of Lexington Man
Dedhamman Forest Knapp of the Lexington police is investigating the complaint of E. P. Schreiber of Lincoln st., that town, that a bullet hit his home. No one was injured. The bullet went through the wall below a rear window on the second floor, coming out in a bedroom. The bullet then hit a bed and dropped to the floor, where it was picked up by a girl. It was a steel jacket slug of a small caliber.

Held in Theft From Woman's Stocking
John Kemrick of 49 Lowell st., West End, was held in $200 for the grand jury in municipal court by Judge Thomas H. Dowd, after a hearing on a charge of robbery, in which he was alleged to have stolen "Mrs. Eva Shapinski of 11 Lowell st. in this city the four stockings right and then to have taken $300 out of her stocking."

Police Accused of Tampering With Auto Witness
A police lieutenant and a traffic officer were accused of attempting to sway a witness in an auto case today in municipal court. The court spoke said he believed the accused lying, but continued the case until Friday for investigation.

Police Accused of Tampering With Auto Witness
Ray Martin of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, testifying in the case of Vincent Condo of Hanover st., on a charge of drunken driving, said the lieutenant asked him to tell the court Condo was drunk when arrested and the traffic officer approached him in the court corridor today.

"I don't believe you. I can't imagine a police officer so low. I think you are fabricating," said Judge Thomas H. Dowd, and continued the case.

ment of Labor and Industries
Persons with large incomes should be able to take care of a larger share of our taxation. I have always been interested in having the burdens of the carriers of small incomes lessened.

"I think our tax laws should be framed in such a way that the people earning small incomes might receive better treatment, surely in raising and educating their children, they have much more to lose than those of greater income."

"An attempt to add this class of wage earners has a worthy object and I certainly hope that something can be done to make our taxation, at least, more equitable."

To Present Gavel to Vets' Commander
Distributing Post No. 118, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., will hold a smoke talk at Bloomfield hall, Grove ave., Dorchester, in aid of its Permanent Home.

Wilfred E. Jacobs, commander of Rutland County council of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., is to present Commander Peter F. Christie of Dorchester Post, a gavel for his efforts in behalf of the veterans of his district.

URGE SHIFTING INCOME TAX BURDEN

Leaders Say "Big Incomes" Could Relieve Salaried Man of Present Load

The campaign of the Union Evening American to eliminate or reduce the state income tax upon an ever-widening string of exemptions each year the hardships this tax imposes, particularly on the earners of small incomes, are realized.

Leaders in business life and civic affairs, builders of homes, all are rallying to the standard of justice for the incalculable worker who leaves the major burden of taxation. Mothers of families, and women prominent in the business world, today voiced their opinions and approval of the drive to eliminate the unfairness of the state income tax burden of the earner of small incomes.

MRS. FREDERICK GUYATT, former district commissioner: "It is often hard for us to realize the hardships, which many people undergo in the raising of families. In the case of those earning small incomes, the difficulties are tremendous."

"When we consider a man paying out his salary in rent, food and clothing for the maintenance of his family, we can easily see that there is not going to be very much left in his pay envelope. And this small amount, there should really be some part set aside for emergencies, such as illness and accident. Then, too, the family must be allowed something for recreation."

"Taken from this angle, the money paid out in taxes is an added and often unnecessary burden."

Under the present system of taxation, the small-salaried workman carries the lion's share of the load. Such a condition is bound to breed discontent and even worse among the masses.

"I congratulate the Boston Evening American in its campaign."

MARKETS

PRICES MIXED

Stocks were mixed on the Boston Block. Exchange volume was moderate. Copper issues steady. Maine Central dropped a point and Boston Edison down a point. American Electric Service advanced a point. Dillstrom gained 1½ and Engineers' Mutual 1½. General Electric's price added one point. Stone & Webster's Interiors and Electric's shares were each up one point.

Algonquin and Quincy were slightly lower. Algonquin gained 1½ and Quincy 1½. General Electric's price eased about a point.

Algonquin had a very short period ending March 14. Lowell, Inc. will report its earnings for the first quarter of the period in its history. Preliminary figures show a profit of $1,000,000 on about $5,000,000 of sales of about 32 cents a share. The company is 60 per cent. owned by the 14 weeks ended March 10, 1929 and 1928. Earnings per share for the 12 weeks period ended November 22, 1928, $2.31, $1.31.

Massachusetts Utilities Association reports increase of 1067.884 in gross revenue for the first 10 months, ended March 31, 1929 against 12 months ended March 31, 1928. For the month ending March 31, 1929, income was $1,000,000, as compared with $953,583 over the month ended March 31, 1928.

Over 135 voluntary reductions in prices are in effect this month. The savings will affect many of the balances available for dividends; consequently, the average dividend for 1928, $1.190 was $2.5113 against $2.5113 for 1927.

Electric Service of New York and American Electric B. Co. declared dividends of 100 cents per share, payable May 1, 1929, on the basis of a dividend of 50 cents per share, payable May 1, 1928.

President A. B. Graustein of International Paper & Power Co. is expected to address the shareholders at the annual shareholders' meeting at New York, Wednesday, April 10. The frankness upon the results for 1929, which he is expected to make, is expected to be about the same as for 1928, which was disappointing. However, they are expected to be better than 1928.

It is considered that the price of the stock in 1929 will be $2.50 to $2.50 a (on the average) lower than the price, before the largest decline in the price of the stock in New York and Chicago. That difference is about $1.50, which is the difference made up by additional earnings for 1929.

Pipe Operations Over Last Year's

"Operations, both in tonnage and profits, are running appreciably ahead of corresponding period in 1929.

"The outlook continues favorable, and while business is in good volume, municipalities are buying only after necessary financing has been accomplished."

5-Cent Revere Fare

Boon to Public, Good for Company

The Boston Evening American has received the following letter from a mother, which tells its own story:

"Editor, Boston Evening American:

"Please boom the five-cent fare from Chelsea to Revere Beach during the summer months as well as between Chelsea square and the Woodlawn section of that city.

"Why? Because parents with large families will be grateful for this consideration.

"Fares for five children besides the fares for mother and father to the beach will make quite a hole in the weekly pay envelope. Please remember this type of outing is the only one that many of the children of the poor working classes will get during the heated term."

The conference which Mayor Whalen of Chelsea has called with the officials of the street railway lines should be productive of this five-cent fare during the summer.

From Chelsea to the Beach is a short haul through populous territory. It can be made a profitable one for the street railway.

Street railway officials, in common with other public utility operators, should get back to the wise old theory of making service as cheap as they can afford to be without it.

The Worcester and Cambridge electric companies are immediate examples of the efficacy of that theory. They yielded to heaven when their rates were cut. But an army of new customers found the rates within their reach and, we are now told, the net earnings were substantially increased.

That would be no doubt the effect of the five-cent fare from Chelsea to Revere Beach.

The human considerations outweigh the economic. A beautiful nature supply Revere with one of the finest expanses of white beach on the Atlantic coast. It is ideally situated close to the metropolis of New England. Lincoln's statement that God loved the poor because he made so many of them might be translated to mean that He must have intended people of moderate means to enjoy Revere because he placed it so handy to them.

The surf and sunshine of Revere Beach are health-giving. Revere furnishes several hundred thousand people with their nearest source of relief from the hot weather of Summer and their only source of recreation. Those who need it most are the ones to whom the cost of getting to it is likely to be a burden. The railway can help them and help itself.

Prohibition Speeches

Each Side Might Invite Other Side's Talks

The wets of this State will hold a notable meeting Sunday night in Symphony Hall. Congressman LaGuardia of New York, a courageous man, will discuss the evils which have become synonymous with prohibition.

Two days later the prohibition forces will be meeting in convention at the Hotel Statler. A distinguished audience will be present. It will witness among other things, a tableau of parody on the wet leaders at Washington, including LaGuardia.

Both these camps contain well-intentioned people. They profess to be striving for the same goal in the interest of their country, namely, temperance.

The dries would have done well to have invited LaGuardia. They would see an interesting man and hear an interesting speech and possibly derive a lesson from their viewpoint.

The wets, with equal grace, could afford their rostrum to a talented representative of the other side.

But it seems not to occur to either of them that this serious problem will be settled by holding ex-parte meetings and making faces at each other.

Dodging Roll Calls

A Suggestion to Massachusetts Senate

The Massachusetts Senate rejected a bill which would have legalized a strike against a closed shop.

On the merit of that legislation there is a divided opinion. But the Senate declined a request made to it for a rollcall vote on the subject.

By so doing, the Senators deprived the people of the State, whom they serve, of the right to know how they voted.

They thus shrouded themselves in the secrecy which prevails in a star-chamber session.

On the demerit of that, there can be no division of opinion whatever.

Banks Can Help

Money for Homebuilding

An analytical survey of building operations, which bears all the marks of accuracy, has just been completed by the Eastern Laboratory.

The survey shows that building work has improved. Building contracts for public works increased forty-eight per cent last month over the same period a year ago.

Industrial building increased thirty-three per cent. These are really remarkable increases when compared with the phenomenal national prosperity of 1929.

While the governments and the industries have their heads up residential building continues to lag. And that is where the great growth ought to be. The population is increasing. Better times are within reach. Home-owning is the most adequate national security.

The banks of New England might well soften any terms which now retard borrowing for home-building. Better that money be loaned here than to doubtful enterprises abroad.

Some Wheels of Traffic

Not all the wheels of traffic turn
Upon the city streets.
For there are wheels inside the head
Of him who wildly heats

His zigzag way among the cars
At risk of life and limb.
And now Jaywalker must be shown
There's traffic law for him.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR BAER

Mr. Colledge selects a dainty blackboard where he autographs a mountain in the Black Hills.

The Black Hills are in Dakota. Well, that's one lesson the kids won't have to look at in New Jersey.

But it will write his history in 300 words. Colledge. Each word will be three feet high. Which gladdens our national history to show an adult plane with outdoor cigarette advertising.

Incorporated in this rocky tapestry will be dater and figures almost as important as those on a dial telephone.

Col will complete his history of these American westerner interest, on up to 1757. That makes the U. S. only 17 years of age, but Col will soon get it into long trousers.

Many prominent men are revivified by Mr. Colledge. They think they could write on a mountain as well that it would run six dimensions.

Following his usual habits, when Col sees the bulletin on the mountain, the first thing he will do will be to vote it.

The Senate will pass a budget for six million to purchase Col will extra mountain for a poster.

Which will start an epidemic of scribbling on the chart of true patriots. And when you see little of these three-lion boulders, you will know they are struggling back from school with their home work.

But in fact there is every conceivable stage and occasion of other, between mutual fertility and complete sterility.

At one extreme the male and female breed freely together, and their offspring are fertile. In this case they are generally called the same species—mated, and serve as an example.

At the other extreme the male and female do not breed together, and their offspring are sterile. In this case they are generally called the same species—mated, and serve as an example.

Planetary System

By PROF. HENDERSON

Suppose you started out with the idea of making a chart, in scale, of the solar system.

First comes the sun, and then in order occur Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, the Asteroids, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune. The distance of these various bodies from the sun are in the following ratios:

584, 108, 255, 365, 384, 778, 954, 1913, 3667

Now, if we keep these ratios and represent the sun in the same scale, we shall find it impossible to get all the planets on one chart.

For example, if we represent the sun as a circle one-fourth of an inch in diameter, the distance of Neptune from the sun's center will be 64 feet.

Even if we had a wall space big enough to carry the picture of Neptune's orbit we would break down at the other end—the end of minutes.

On the scale of one-eighth of an inch for the sun's radius, no dot we could make would be sufficiently small to represent such small bodies as Venus, Mars or Mercury.

There is something very queer about this layout of planets. They are quite in the middle of some fifteen hundred tiny planets which we call the asteroids. These are four comparatively small, dense planets between the asteroids.

Can you imagine that between the sun and the asteroids there are four "major" planets? The asteroids are in the middle of the four "major" planets.

George Parson, in his singularly entitled work, "Discovery of the Earth," has given a most interesting and plausible theory to account for the peculiar grouping of the asteroids inner and outer planets.

The gist of his theory is that a "cataclysmic" event took place between the four "major" planets and the four "minor" planets.

He believes that each set came into being at about the same period, but in a very different way. The "cataclysmic" event was a collision of the matter of the sun's mass.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. MCINTYRE

New York, April 23.—The nation's attention is being attracted to the children's restaurants in New York City. There has been one of the outstanding business achievements of the year. For a decade the chain of eateries paid enormous dividends and then almost overnight went into a tailspin.

Many reasons were hinted. Among them was that the original owners had become vegetarians and were forcing the theory on patrons. Nearly all red-blooded meats were removed from the menu and the offerings were almost entirely vegetarian dishes.

There was also established a rule that water should not be served unless there was a special request. This resulted in a protesting howl it was quickly abandoned. Too many of the places open all night became the haunts of pathological hybrids who chirrup along with hands on their hips.

Whatever the cause, the restaurant became almost deserted and a new management took over the place. The old order was restored. Tempting dishes that had been the backbone of the chain were featured and the drooping came creeping back.

Under the new regime an effort has been made to get away from the glittering porcelain sanitation that some suggested an operating room. New chairs were furnished in a number of places, with shaded light, Turkish, Moorish and Spanish.

The most magnificent of all is the Spanish room in the basement of the Savoy Plaza with a modern interior, a ceiling of stained glass, a balcony of wrought-iron and bright glass. Marble-clad steps give way to those of oak, scattered for sport.

There is a half block long soda fountain, a place to check hats and wraps, and water in it but forms touched off with gold leaf. The water is not to be used in order to save the water.

The only thing to be feared for many is the abundance of paper napkins. Popular speakers are now bidding for what they call a class clientele. They do not encourage all comers, but instead.

They were describing the new picture of a certain distant, Charlie Hanson Town painted a perfect picture with which he is the sort who uses apparatus.

The well-dressed man must have a set of indispensable accessories for his evening clothes. They are: a set of indispensable accessories for his evening clothes. They are: a set of indispensable accessories for his evening clothes.
